The Burnished Shield.

In olden time, (so runs the story,) two gallant knights, armed cap-a-pie, as was the wont of cavaliers in those days, rode gaily along the King's highway; the one galloped on prancing steed from the east, the other from the west. As the noonday sun shone brightly on the scene, the two knights met by chance at a point on the road where the monarch had erected a glowing shield, in token of some victory won. Both gallant knights reined up their fiery steeds, while he from the west, gazing on the uplifted emblem of his Prince's victory, exclaimed, "What, ho! Sir Knight! how beautiful a silver shield is here." As the object of their mutual admiration reflected the bright rays of the sun from its burnished surface, the other, saluting the stranger knight, replied in courteous tones, "A beautiful shield, indeed! a beautiful golden shield." "What say you, Sir Knight," again spoke the first, "a golden shield? By my lady, 'tis not of gold, but brightly burnished silver." And so they contended, till high words followed, and the knightly challenge was given and accepted. With visor down and lance in rest they fought, there upon the highway, till at last one gaily galloped riderless away over the mead, leaving his master prone upon the earth with mortal wound. As the life-blood trickled from his wounds, the dying warrior cast his eye upon the shield, and called to the victor, and pointing upwards, said, "Thou wast right, Sir Knight; behold the shield is gilded, as thou saidst. Thy pardon now I crave." "Stay, friend," said the other, "behold thou, too, wast right; for on the other side the shield is silver." And so it was. The western face of that shield was silver, and the other gold. And so the knights had fought in vain.

Thus like the silly knights do men and women go through the world, judging not merely of things, but of each other, from their own stand-point. We could each of us be forewarned if the shield were not gold, and yet our neighbor knows that it is silver. Neither has wit enough to pass to the other side and view the object of dispute from his neighbor's side. The little story of the Knights has its moral beyond its seeming importance, and teaches charity and caution how we adhere to our own peculiar views, or at least how we challenge the sincerity of those of our fellows. If all men thought exactly alike on every subject, we might have a very harmonious world, but surely a very insipid one. It was not strange, either, that our two knights should have thought the shield, the one of silver, the other of gold. But their folly was to quarrel over the matter. Yet that was the way in the days of chivalry. In our own days we do about the same—less the chivalry. But we did not intend to moralize on this over true tale. We leave it to our readers to fill it out and apply the moral, which is as pointed as it is indisputable.

About no one part of the globe do travelers, and even home folks, differ so much as about Utah and its surroundings. Some there are who only see the silver lining of the shield, and, heedless of the "other side," know not whether it be of gold or darker hue. The story of Mormonism, as told by travelers and sight-seers, is as varied as the several circumstances under which the narrators have seen it.

Horace Greeley has been lecturing of late concerning the "Great West," and has a word or two to say about Utah, which lies in the very track of advancing empire and civilization. What he saw when here and hereabouts he tells bluntly and plainly. Here is his view of the Shield on the "King's highway." The knights of these days battle with quills, and the only blood they spill is printer's ink—more effective in the decision of great questions than all the lances poised or life blood spilled in more chivalric days. In the report of a recent lecture at the East by Mr. Greeley, we find the following:

The lecturer's sketch of life in Utah was of great interest, and his personal experiences there afforded him good opportunity for dropping some of his quiet good things, sufficiently valuable to be picked up and treasured by all who heard them. He dwelt at length on the course being rapidly developed by the great social evil of the Mormons, polygamy; and while he characterized the people as industrious and peaceful, and did not question their honesty in the profession of their peculiar doctrine, he saw, he believed, in this vice alone the sure evidence of confusion and ultimate ruin. He has no doubt, he said, that there were houses in Utah where peace and harmony resided with the husband and his four wives and more. He had no doubt of the possibility either of all the wives of Brown being on good terms with those of Smith or Jones or Robinson; but it was nevertheless true among the Mormons, as it was true elsewhere, that no woman accepted her sixth or fourth of a claim in the husband without the consciousness of a blight of her existence. Talk of love, he said, no man that was not stone blind, who saw the stone walls that inclosed the prison-houses of the women, could suppose that there was love among these people. "It was a hellish, sad and true," he said, "the necessary law of such relations. Every day further developed the truth of this. The wealthy were building higher walls. It was but a question of the system which had produced the downfall of so many nations; and in Utah, as in them, either polygamy will be abolished, or there will be many a bloody struggle. He had met there the son of one who had once been a wealthy merchant in New York, and an Alderman, when that position was not synonymous with robbery. The man was not wealthy as the father had been. He had two wives, a third child, and one of them (unnecessarily true), was the daughter of the other. The father was locked upon a chair as a matter of course by the eldest, and the second, worked as well as the three—consequently, could be expected to behave itself, and he went home one day and found the young man had disappeared. She had not been heard of when he (the lecturer) had left, nor did he presume he had since recovered her. She preferred, no doubt, the favors which were not divided with her mother. He had, also, even among the Bishops, met several not over happy in their marital relations—one who had among his wives two of his nieces; another whose two wives (he was modest) never spoke to each other on any occasion, which made the house rather awkward to visitors. Only imagine to yourself, said the lecturer, a family of twelve children, with four or five mothers to bring them up in one house, and you have as fair a start for hell upon earth as you can well imagine. Ten years in such a purgatory would make a man wailing for the sound of Gabriel's trumpet. With much more that was racy and instructive about Mormons, their country and their customs, the lecturer passed on toward his journey's end, describing the approach to the fruitful fields and forests of California.

Hepworth Dixon, the English traveler, saw the silver side of the Shield, and we leave these knights of the quill to settle their differences between them.

A sensational Sunday paper states that Roberts and the Fenian Senate are making extensive preparations for a new Canadian campaign. They have twenty thousand breach-loaders, and it is said that 15,000 to 18,000 Fenians will cross into Canada at the order of Roberts, as soon as transportation can be furnished. The objective point will be Montreal, but Kingston and Toronto will also be attacked.

New York, March 18.

The Herald's special says: Messrs. Benjamin Baker and James W. Meagher, representatives of the Irish Republic in America, had an important interview with President Johnson yesterday afternoon, with the view of soliciting the recognition of the belligerent rights by the American Government. The delegation was cordially received, and Mr. Baker, on behalf of the Fenian Brotherhood in America, made an address, in which he asked that the Irish Republic shall be respected, as a Government actually in existence, and at war with Great Britain, by the Government of the United States; and that the Government of the United States shall insist that rights to which the Irish Republic is entitled during war shall be respected by her adversary, the English Government, and according to the rules which nations should reciprocally observe when deciding their differences by arms. The President listened very attentively, and said the great question was, "Is there a de facto Government actually in existence?" The delegation assured him that there was, when he continued: "This question shall receive my most serious consideration; that consideration necessary in deciding a matter of such great importance. You are aware that my sympathies have always been with your people. The delegation asked the prompt interference of the Government in behalf of British denegation. The cases now being tried in British denegation. They argued that if the British Government were justified in detaining these persons for fighting and speaking in America against English tyranny, they would be equally justified in imprisoning prominent journalists and public men who were naturalized citizens, and who had written and spoken in a similar way, should they happen to put foot on British soil. The President said that measures had been taken for the release of several naturalized citizens, and that details and particulars of all other cases forwarded to the Government would receive attention, and that full justice should be done to naturalized citizens.

Chief Justice Chase, on whom devolves the duty of nominating and recommending the Registers in Bankruptcy provided for in the Bankruptcy Act, declines to assume the labor and responsibility of making the selections, without submitting to the entire Court the question of the power of Congress to impose upon him this duty.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Treasurer Spinner both affirm that there is not the slightest evidence in the Treasury of any over issue, either of 7-30's or of fractional currency. The Tribune's special says the President on Saturday sent to the Senate a large number of nominations of Postmasters, Collectors and Assessors. A Committee on Public Expenditures will be appointed to-day. They will proceed immediately to examine further into the official conduct of Collector Smythe, and will probably report before adjournment whether or not Smythe's offences warrant his removal. It is thought the President will remove him, and end all further controversy. The President's conduct in not removing Smythe is being made most of by those men in Congress who are working up the impeachment. Mr. Hulburd will be Chairman of the Committee.

The Reconstruction bill, as it passed the Senate, will come up in the House to-morrow, and a Committee of Conference will be held immediately, it being the wish of the members of the House to have the matter settled as soon as possible.

Southampton, March 17.

The steamship Mississippi, from New York, arrived this morning, and after landing passengers and mail, proceeded on her way to Bremen.

AN ANCIENT REVOLVER.—In the historical collection of Dresden is an object of great interest—a perfect revolving pistol of more than 200 years old, no antiquated, half-made, rough, rusty pistol as were the Toledo and Damascus blades of older date. It is of the same size as a Colt's revolver, and not only the same structure, size, and shape, but they were six in number. The only point of inferiority was that in this there is no spring to bring up the next barrel when one is fired. It must be done with the hand. Col. Colt was shown the pistol when in Europe, shortly before his death. His face was very expressive when he saw his own invention applied more than two centuries before. Of course the lock was flint, and yet being a revolving lock it was packed away in very small space, and the whole aspect of the pistol was as neat and attractive as any modern revolver. There is also another fine arm still more interesting. It is the Whitworth gun, perfect in every respect, except that the bore is square instead of six-sided. Truly, there is nothing new under the sun!—Ex.

FROM PANAMA.—A private letter received in this city, dated Logan Springs, March 4th, contains the following:

"Everything is now looking up. The people here are very sanguine that a great future awaits this country, notwithstanding such an opinion meets with opposition in certain circles, by those who have been disappointed. The lodes which are being worked upon, all look well. The weather is splendid. Mr. Raymond's ten-stamp mill is now at Hick; Conger's mill is at Logan. Bidwell's mill will be built at Hick's. There is plenty of water there now. About one hundred tons of very rich ore has been taken out of the 'Lost Lode,' and it continues to look well. Carl Chapin has married Mrs. Warren; Ritter has gone to San Francisco; Dr. Conger has gone to Salt Lake. Allen is in Austin, and is soon expected back. The future looks cheering."

A POWERFUL FERTILIZER.—Every farmer has a root at command, whose presence in stoves or chimneys is not unfrequently the cause of fires, occasioning the loss sometimes of both property and life. This agent for evil is one of the most valuable manures, and nothing but the most culpable carelessness and indifference will suffer it to remain a standing menace to life and property, when it can be easily removed and turned to good use in the field or garden. Twelve quarts of soot in a bushel of water will make a powerful liquid manure, which will improve the growth of flowers, garden vegetables, or root crops. In either a liquid or solid state, it makes an excellent top dressing for grass or cereal crops.

COIN'S DOLLAR STAMPS.—It will scarcely be credited, at first thought, that twenty tons of postage stamps have been used during the year. Such, however, is the fact, and by artificial measurement they would cover an area of forty-eight and a half square miles, or as a curious calculator says, enough to roof a large township with all its houses, barns, churches, gardens, forests and farms; or, if you choose to make a ribbon of them, enough to reach nearly from the equator to either pole, and to encircle the globe three times. So that if everybody would be obliging enough to use the Government stamp on their correspondence, the mere omission of these little scraps of paper would lighten the mail bags by more than fifty thousand pounds, and save in paper $15,000 or $20,000.

SALT FOR PRESERVING POSTS.—A correspondent of the Chicago Prairie Farmer writes as follows, touching a method for preserving posts:

Having just read an article on the preservation of timber in your paper of December 8th, and believing that some cheap, certain, and practical method of arresting the decay of timber, and especially of fence posts, would save an enormous amount of labor and expense in repairing fences every few years, therefore I will endeavor to give a cheap and certain method for the preservation of posts—without cost of patent, and yet it is a "white substance" which is easily obtained. It is salt. I examined posts this season which a friend had set twenty-five years ago, and yet they show very little sign of decay. How much longer they will last I know not, but presume from the present appearance that they will last some fifteen or twenty years yet.

Another friend has two lines of fence which were made as near alike as could be, except the posts for one line were salted and the others not. These two lines were built eight years ago, and the difference is now very perceptible. The posts which were not salted appear to be tired of standing, for they are leaning in every direction, while those which were, stand firm and erect, just as though they defied the ravages of time.

Now for the process. It is simple, cheap, and easy, and without cost of patent, and has been tested more than two years, like that white substance which I read of. Bore two holes in each post with an inch auger—one so that it will be about six inches under ground when set, and the other about a foot above the surface—fill the holes nearly full of salt, and plug them up with short pins.

To have the greatest effect, posts should be salted and wet while the timber is green, so as to prevent the sap from souring, which, I think, is the start of decay.

The reasons why salt prevents the decay of wood, I am not chemist enough to fully explain, but facts demonstrate that to be the case. Who ever saw salt barrel staves rot? Will they not lie around for years without showing any signs of decay, if, in the meantime some old cow does not lick them to death.

THE SURPRISE OAT.—The Chicago Prairie Farmer says:

Western farmers have of late, through various sources, heard very much of the Surprise oat, grown by Van Olinda of DeKalb county. The history of the oat is briefly given. Six years ago, Van Olinda found a single head of oats in his wheat field that struck him as differing from any grain of the kind he had ever seen. There were but seven grains upon the stalk. Five of these were planted at the proper time the succeeding season, and from them the crop of the present year, now offered for sale, descended. The yield this year is represented to have been 133 1/2 bushels per acre, and the truth of this statement is attested by men with whom we have long been personally acquainted, and whose word we have no reason to doubt.

That this variety is two or three weeks earlier than ordinary oats is also certified to by the same parties. In appearance the oat speaks for itself, it being very large and plump, and weighing about forty-five pounds to the bushel. The straw, as we have seen, it grows about five feet in length, is very strong and is not liable to fall. The heads are of extraordinary length, frequently measuring eighteen or more inches, and bearing upon all sides.

Van Olinda showed us a sample of these oats, readily labeled for the great Paris Exposition, where he expects to eclipse all competitors, as he has no doubt will in quantity produced, at least, if not in quality.

Oats like these must have superior advantages in any market where oat meal is an object. They are also pronounced by brewers in this city to be superior to any oats they have ever examined for making purposes.

Farmers who desire to make the most money from their crops will not overlook the merits of this new candidate for public favor.

ARIZONA CORP.—Yesterday the Montana carrier arrived the first lot of smelted Arizona copper ever shipped to New York. About 250 tons of this ore has arrived here within the last fortnight from the Colorado river. The lot which was forwarded yesterday is from the Great Central mine, at Williams Fork, and is of fine quality, averaging 93 per cent, with a small admixture of the precious metals. The Great Central Mining Company expect large shipments shortly, and will soon be in a condition to forward from fifty to one hundred tons of bar copper by every steamer.

THE VEDETTE.—The Vedette is the pioneer daily newspaper of Utah. Its extensive circulation in every section of the Territory, and its position as the only paper which gives the telegraphic despatches of the whole world, make it the most valuable medium for advertising in these four central Territories.

FOOT TRAIN.—Amid the very numerous subterfuges which are reported to, under circumstances of a peculiar (pecuniary) nature, there always appears upon the scene of action some wag who, taking advantage of the dilapidated condition of the pockets of his fellow men, attempts some joke at the expense of the poor. We were formerly reminded of this fact on observing yesterday a notice stuck up on several of the principal corners of our streets, which are so frequently occupied by those who seek employment, by some means or another, or are on the watch for a chance to "raise a stake." This notice, with exclamations of surprise, announced that a "Foot Train" was about to start for Salmon river, with the following restrictions and privileges: "Passage free, each man to find his own grub; no extra baggage allowed; whisky prohibited; every man to pack his own provisions; no borrowing on the road, and all parties not equally furnished with the rest, shall, on inspection, at the time of their departure, forfeit all contributions." The rumor is, that the list is almost full and the train will start immediately after notice being given by the chief of the expedition. Notice will be given of a meeting this evening.

THE BLUES.—This epidemic, which at times seizes upon a community, has been very prevalent for the last two days. We heard the answer given frequently, when the question was propounded "How are you?" "Oh, I have got the blues." It was the frequent repetition which called our attention to it. But cheer up, for spring is close at hand, and better times are coming.

OFF FOR CALIFORNIA.—Mr. J. S. Woods started with his train for California on Sunday last; the party consisted of six. Among the number was Mr. Louis A. Scott, who has for a long time been engaged at the store of Messrs. Gilbert & Sons. Mr. Woods, we learn, intends to drive a large stock of cattle to California.

THE QUESTION ANSWERED.—We asked the question in our last issue, "Where are the Vedettes?" Yesterday one of them, high up in the order, informed us that, although there were no outward demonstration, yet in the private home of many of the sons of Ireland the Shamrock was honored, and the "pot" bedewed its leaves, as in times of yore.

THE ACCIDENT AT STOCKTON.—We learn from Dr. Tait, who has just returned from Stockton, that the name of the man injured, a few days since in that town, was Garfield. The injuries received were not of an serious nature as was first reported. The hand was only badly bruised, but on the application of proper remedies the patient is doing well.

ARRIVAL OF STAGES.—The Northern and Eastern stages arrived with mails last evening; the former at nine o'clock, and the latter at half past nine. The Western coach had not arrived up to the hour of our going to press. The Eastern stage brought two passengers. No arrivals on the Northern coach.

THE SPANISH TRAIN.—This train did not go off on Sunday, but was engaged in loading up yesterday, and left some time during the day. Mr. J. K. Sutterly and lady will accompany the train. Mr. S. will try his fortune at the Salmon mines this summer.

THE ROAD.—The snow has entirely left the streets of this city. The mud has dried up, and all the roads leading to and from the city are in good condition, and are daily improving.

MORE PERIODICALS.—We have received a number of periodicals from Major Stratman, the extensive publisher of San Francisco, for which he will please accept our thanks.

RETURNED.—Mr. Henry, of the firm of McQuest & Henry, has returned to this city, after an absence of two months on a business tour in the southern part of the Territory.

CENTRAL AMERICA.—The El Parvenir, published at Rivas, contains a full description of the Jubilla mine, purchased last year for the Central American Association. It is situated in the Chontales district of Nicaragua, and is represented as rich in gold and sulphuric acid.

The mine is of a steady, uniform richness, and will hold out at least half a century, even if it has to feed all the machinery that can be worked with the available water power. It runs from east to west, is generally from eight to ten feet, but in some parts as many as twenty feet wide, and it contains gold and sulphuric acid. From the general samples taken and washed the average produce of gold is above one ounce to the ton, but never less; and in some places, as for instance, in the bottom level, forty ounces the ton. The greatest depth attained in the present workings is fifty yards, and at that depth the lode is decidedly richer than it is toward the surface of the mine.

WILLIAM A. CLARK.—The Boston Post says Walker, the colored member of the Massachusetts Legislature, will be a prominent candidate for Congress from that State next year.

It is said that Henry Ward Beecher intends to conduct a mission against Theodore Tilton, editor of the New York Independent, for publishing the charges of the former in his paper against his wife.

CORRIGENDUM.—Seven hundred pounds of copper ore from the mines near Colton, California, were sent to the London market, and produced five hundred pounds of pure copper.

California Items.

We clip the following from the Alta California of the 8th instant:

A young lady of this city, who has been some time studying for the stage, will make her debut at the Grand Opera House, shortly, in "The Rustic Prince."

Miss Rosa Celeste, the bold young lady who walked a rope stretched from the Cliff House to Seal Rock, has recovered from the injuries which she sustained by falling, at the Willows. It is in contemplation to offer Miss Celeste a complimentary benefit, which the public will join in making a substantial one.

Judge Rix sentenced John Stock, Got Jones, Henry Martin, Martin Burns, Wm. Abner, John Connolly, John Butte, Patrick Moloney, Frank Harrison, and Charles McMahon, the Chinese Hotters convicted by the Grand Jury on Thursday last, to pay a fine of $500 each, and be imprisoned in the county jail in addition, and in event of nonpayment of the fine, to serve its equivalent in the county jail at $2 per day.

REMARKABLE CHOLERA CURE.—500 CASES TREATED.—No Deater.—All the medical cholera victims use camphor in their treatment of cholera, and its value has been admitted on all sides, yet it has always failed to effect a desired cure, unless the experienced Dr. Rubini should prove an exception. The "saturated spirit of camphor" used by this eminent Neapolitan physician consists, as we learn from a correspondent of the London Star, of equal parts, by weight, of camphor and spirits, and to the power thus obtained he attributes his success in the treatment of the disease. The ordinary spirit of camphor consists of one part by weight of camphor to nine parts of spirits of wine, while the homeopathic preparation is made by mixing one of camphor to five of the spirits of wine. The quantity of camphor which water will take up is small, and to obtain the "saturated spirit of camphor of Rubini," it is necessary to distill spirits of wine, and get rid of so much of its water as will bring it to 60 degrees overproof, in which condition it will dissolve and hold in solution its own weight of camphor.

With this "saturated spirit of camphor" Dr. Rubini treated in Naples 592 cases of Asiatic cholera, without the loss of a single patient. Of these 592 cases 200 were cured in the Royal Almshouse, 11 in the Royal Poor-house, and 166 in the 3d Swiss Regiment of Wolf. That the 377 cases treated by Dr. Rubini in these public institutions were all genuine cases of Asiatic cholera, and some "terribly severe," and that all recovered, the evidence of the following distinguished individuals, with their official seals attached, sufficiently attests: II. Generale Governatore Ricci; II. Maggiore Comandante Nicolo Formi; II. Capitano Comandante Filippo Ricci, Colonnello Edmondo Wolff. The method of cure is as follows: "When a man is seized with cholera he should at once," says Rubini, "lie down, be well wrapped in blankets, and take every five minutes four drops of the saturated tincture of camphor. In very severe cases the dose ought to be increased to from 5 to 20 drops every five minutes. In the case of a man of advanced age, accustomed to take wine and spirits, where the drop given in drops has no effect, give a small coffee-spoonful every five minutes, and in a very short time the coveted reaction will occur. Ordinary in two or three or four hours, abundant perspiration will come out, and then cure will follow." "The preventive method," writes Dr. Rubini, "is this: Let those who are in good health, while living in accordance with their usual habits, take every day five drops of the saturated spirit of camphor upon a small lump of sugar (water must never be used as a medium, or the camphor will become solid, and its curative properties cease), and repeat the dose three or four times a day. Spices, aromatics, herbs, coffee, tea, and spirituous liquors should be avoided."

Here, then, we have as strong a prima facie case made out as can be well conceived in favor of the preventibility and curability of the Asiatic cholera, and that by a remedy which is at once portable and inexpensive and which all sections of the medical profession have heretofore employed, and can therefore, raise no objection to employing again in increased potency.

STARTLING ANNOUNCEMENT.—The Visalia Delta, of the 27th ult., says: "On last Sabbath a little girl living with Mr. Samuel Evans brought into the house, warm from the nest, a singular looking hen's egg upon which was plainly inscribed the words, 'O ye inhabitants of Visalia, repent for the prophet will be in your midst in 1897.' The letters appear as though raised on the surface of the egg by an impression made from within. This may or may not be a matter of great importance to Visalia, but at all events, the advertisement to repent is timely and highly appropriate. As to what prophet is referred to there seems to be a doubt, and as we already have one prophet in our midst, and a great many others who make large pretensions in the same direction, this part of the announcement may not be of so much consequence to us as it would be to a people less favored."
